the Off-Street Parking Commission on whose recommendation bills for two multiple-story garages were introduced in the Board of Aldermen, told the committee the present shortage of convenient parking places "will unquestionably grow more acute as expressways leading downtown are completed and riverfront development cuts off parking space there."

Opposition to the pending legislation, under which the garages would be built in the Chestnut-Pine-Sixth - Broadway and Delmar-Lucas-Eighth Ninth blocks, was led by the Parking Lot Owners Association, whose spokesmen argued Vigorously that there already are enough parking spaces downtown and the private operators have plans for substantial increases in capacity when demand justifies it.

Bills permitting establishment of municipal garages "have been unsuccessful in virtually every session of the Missouri Legislature since 1947 as a result of the strong opposition by the owners of private parking lots." he declared.

The Off-Street Parking Commission had met with the private operators in an attempt to work out a solution, the Mayor said, but the operators' answer always was: "There is no need for any more parking in downtown St. Louis."

"Your city government is never anxious to enter a field in which private enterprise is involved." Tucker continued. "Municipal responsibility to provide off-street parking arises only after failure of private enterprise to make adequate provision for parking. The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff made no direct reference to new controversies among the armed forces.

Radford said, discussing stratery, that "what the chiefs seem to hear most about is that mobility is merely a matter of more airlift or sealift—more airplanes or ships." He added that he wished this were true but "unfortunately, mobility is much more than numbers of airplanes or ships." Among other things, it includes an adequate system of bases and the systems of keeping them supplied with fuel and other material. Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov, who went on to Damascus yesterday after a stay here of almost a week, was reported to have brought attractive new offers, including a $1,120,000,000 interest-free loan to help Egypt's huge new Aswan dam on the Nile.

Shepilov himself yesterday described this report as an "imagination of the press." American and British agreements with Egypt on financing the dam are considerably less extensive than the reported Soviet offer.

Government sources insisted that no new arms deals with the Communists are contemplated at present.

A joint communique on Shepilov's conversations here yesterday said only that the two nations were agreed on the value of expanding their economic, political and cultural relations.

Nasser, however, did not move as quickly to work out details of the financing and construction plans as American and British officials had hoped.

The jury's verdict found Charles Perry of Jackson, James Shelby of Silver Spring, Md., and Michael Falcone and Louis Abatte of Chicago guilty as charged.

The jury recommended leniency for Perry, president of the Communications Workers of America local during a ninestate strike last year. Perry said he had no knowledge of plans to dynamite a Government-leased cable.

The receivership suit pending before him, Judge Niblack said, resulted from alleged failure of the insurance company to pay an $8000 judgment obtained for a child who was crippled in an automobile accident.

The fresh young professional politicians and the Chamber of Commerce supported the Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority and strongly advised the average citizen to ignore the Housing Authority for fear of confusing and frightening the voters who, they maintained, would whoolutely not countenance federal absolutely not countenance federal aid for low-rent housing.

This political strategy received broad public support which included a virtual news blackout on the part of the city newspaper.

The Housing Authority was supported by the Columbia Missourian, a newspaper operated as a commercial enterprise by the University of Missouri, and a small group of volunteer politicians.

A few days before election the seasoned, cynical, professional politicians, including two of our five city councilmen, came out in the open to oppose both authorities. They had a seemingly unlimited amount of money for radie and television time, and their attack was vicious, unprincipled and extreme. But it was no different from a camein the had defeated when re-But it was no different from a cam paign that had defeated urban re newal proposals here four years ago Election day came. The people voted decisively not to leash dogs and squirrels, and they approved a badly needed hospital addition, a Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority, and a Housing Authority.

So the seasoned, cynical professional politicians were wrong. The fresh young professional politicians were wrong. It happened that the volunteer, amateur politicians were right, but if the good Lord had appeared to them the night before election and said, "The Housing Authority will be approved," they would thority will be approved," they would have replied, "Sir, with all due re spect, You must be mistaken."

The Court Plan at 16

One of the fears about Missouri's nonpartisan court plan was that each Governor would appoint to the bench only members of his own po-litical party. This would be possible if the Cir cuit Judicial Commissions rec ommended at least one member of each party in the panels of three nominees

Gov. Donnelly's two latest appointments for St. Louis and they show the Missouri Chief Executive rising above political attachment. William E. Buder, who is to succeed Circuit Judge Eugene J. Sartorius, is a Republican, while John C. Casey, successor to Judge Francis E. Williams, is a Democrat.

In his first term, Gov. Dennelly selected five Democrats for judicial posts. Thus far in his second term, the Governor has appointed 15 Judges under the nonpartisan court plan and he could not have been more even-handed politically. Seven of the 15 were Republicans and eight vere Democrats.

The nonpartisan plan has now been in operation almost 16 years. Under it, Governors have been called on to make 40 appointments. These have been divided, 26 Democrats and 14

Even Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, despite his long ignoring of the state Constitution and the Supreme Court in refusing to fill three Jackson county judgeships, has followed what should be the permanent pattern in his appointments.

Incidentally has any judicial circuit in Missouri added itself to the jurisdictions covered originally by the nonpartisan court plan? If not, surely there are jurisdictions which would respond to the leadership of informed members of the bar in their regions. The Missouri plan has been widely studied outside this state. When it was adopted, its architects hoped that it would spread beyond the State Supreme Court, the State Courts of Appeal and the St. Louis and Kansas City Circuit Courts.

The tendency is to forget the low estate into which the bench in St. Louis had fallen when the plan was approved by the people of Missouri in 1940. But the ugly memory was fresh in the minds of the voters in 1942 for in that year Missouri defeated a proposal to repeal the

The Missouri courts are not perfect and they never will be as long as they are presided over by human beings. But the administration of justice has been greatly improved and for this in large part the people of the state have the non partisan court plan to thank.

What Realistic Plan?

Having left "inactive" status far behind. Gov Averell Harriman is being most active indeed in his quest for the Democratic presidential nomination. Scarcely a day goes by without a statement or a speech from the Governor, doing what is known as "developing issues."

In testimony before a House subcommittee, Gov. Harriman undertook to develop an issue out of civil defense. He found the Eisenhower Administration derelict for failing to come up with "a realistic, effective plan." He said it "absurd" that the country is still operating under a 1930 statute which leaves primary responsibility for civil defense to states and cities.

The Governor may be right about this, but since the present law does put responsibility on states, and since Gov. Harriman believes so pas-sionately in a "realistic, effective plan," and since he is, after all, the Governor of the largest state, it seems only fair to ask what realistic effective plan he has developed for New York state during his going-on-two years in office

Or perhaps that would not conform to the re quirements of "developing Issues."

New Highway for 40 and 66

The first federal highway project for the St. Louis region under the prospective federal highway construction program sets a high standard in meeting traffic needs. This is an allotment of $30,000,000 to build a new highway from the Veterans Memorial Bridge in East St. Louis to a planned junction of Highways 40 and 66 near Troy, Ill. The length of the new highway will be about 20 miles.

As everyone knows, Highway 40 is one of the main transcontinental routes and as such it carries heavy east-west traffic. In addition, it is the highway, in the East St. Louis area, for much Illinois suburban traffic for automobile commuters into St. Louis. Currently the course Highway 66 is being rerouted from the Worden Y east of Edwardsville to Highway 40 at the point near Troy. Thus the heavy traffic of 40 and 66 will soon be merged to flow across Madison county to the Mississippi on one highway.

That would be far too much for the existing The need is for a modern roadway facilities. parted highway with multiple lanes in each direction. Apparently this is what the federal authorities have in mind. If other projects in the forthcoming federal program are as worthy, they will produce a splendid lot of highway provements over the nation.

The Debt After Four Years

The Eisenhower Administration will close its fourth year next January with a national debt about 10 billion dollars higher than the one it inherited in 1953. Such is the outlook suggested by Secretary Humphrey's testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee on a bill fixing the debt limit "temporarily" at 278 bil lion dollars.

though he said staying within it during the rest of this year will take careful management. If he succeeds, the debt at the end of 1956 will probably stand somewhere between 277 and 278 billion, as compared with 267.4 billion at the end of the Truman Administration's last year.

The national debt reached its World War II peak in 1945. Since then, its size at the end of calendar years has been as follows (billions of dollars):

1945 — 278.7 1954 — 278.8 1948 — 282.9 1955 — 280.8 1952 — 267.4 1956 — 277 plus (est.) The reason for the rise during the latter years of the Truman Administration and the first three years of the Eisenhower Administration is not hard to discover. The war in Korea, the huge defense expenditures that followed, and failure of Congress to levy enough taxes to pay the whole bill—these were the automatic causes of a rising debt. And we dare say the rise a Republican Administration had been in office

The parking lot operators near Busch Stadium should be checked to see that they don't charge more than they advertise.

I drove into one lot which had a sign, "Parking 75c." The attendant insisted upon a dollar. With so many cars behind me, I couldn't back out of the lot, and so I had to pay the price asked by the attendant.

I don't know how widespread this overcharging practice is and I won't bother to find out. I'll stay away.

GILBERT RYBOCK.

All the same, the figures undoubtedly will have an effect on campaign oratory. Four years ago the Republicans gave the distinct impression that all the nation needed to do to reduce the instonal debt was to elect their ticket. This year, insofar as they take up the issue at all, they will have to explain why the debt went on going up instead of magically shrinking.

The truth seems to be that a big national debt is now a nonpartisan aspect of the American way of life. But we can expect the Democrats to pillory the Republicans on a 277-billion-dollar debt this year, just as the G.O.P. pilloried the Democrats on a 267-billion one in 1952.

Steel: the Last Furlong

Arthur J. Goldberg, general counsel for the steelworkers' union, says the negotiations for a steel labor contract are something like a rse race. The important thing is what hap pens "in the last furlong."

The race is just going into the last furlong now. Present steel contracts expire on June 30. The big companies have served formal notice of the expiration. The union is making ostentatious preparations for a strike. The companies appealing to public opinion to support their offer as fair, reasonable and generous. union is making its own public appeals in the conventional pattern.

But the crucial period has yet to be com-leted. The public will hope that both sides stay at the bargaining table and make genuine efforts to accommodate their differences. On the face of it, they do not seem to be too far with wage and other benefits which they say int to 17 and two-thirds cents an hour in the first year and 65 cents over-all. Union offfcials have hinted that they might accept a 3-year contract provided it included a package increase of 20 cents now

The primary public interest is in avoiding a long work stoppage in steel that would disrupt industry generally and make the ultimate set tlement more difficult. If necessary, of course, the Eisenhower Administration could secure at least an 80-day delay of a strike by invoking the Taft-Hartley Act. But it would be much preferable all around if the issues were settled by the negotiating parties themselves.

A Hopeful Word From Moscow

We are thinking about uncrossing our fingers "new" Russians. The toasts at the latest party for Tito came close to persuading us that they are men of peace and reason. Of course we do not mean the toasts to peace and humanity, to greater freedom and less protocol, or to ore fraternization between the newspaper men of the East and the West. These do not prove very much since scoundrels have always talked the language of saints. We doubt that even old Genghis Khan ever drank to cruelty, pillage, plunder, rapine and rampant injustice.

Even Bulganin's toast to the ladies did not melt us. That could have been just a matter of form, even if it suggests courtesy which, of course, is at least distantly related to good will. No, the toast that came closest to being persuasive was the one to fishermen. In this there is hope since, as Izaak Walton pointed out, angling is the apostolic occupation and the con templative man's recreation.

It involves a full turn of the back on what the practical world deems important. It calls for patient devotion of almost endless time to the beauty of woods and running water. It means devotion to art for art's sake and a fine con-tempt for the reward of a full creel. But it is also full of hope—hope for the quick, keen thrill of a hard strike. And it embodies the chivalry which means that the harder a fish fights the better are his chances of being returned from the net to the stream.

If these Russians really are Brothers of the Angle, they are not quite hopeless. Secretary Dulles may not agree: but President Eisenhower himself an angler, will understand. We are sure he will join us in hopeful watching.

Honey for a Horn

We are glad-repeat that, glad-the automobile industry is looking vigorously for a new horn. Since the old klaxon, which went ah-ooga, dignified and competent, there has been no automobile horn which could command our esteem. To the contrary, there have been many obile horns which we would willingly, and without the smallest twinge of conscience, have consigned to the Mindanao Deep. They have been raucous, rude, excessive, and devoid of all hu-

Fortunately, it has taken the automobile industry no longer than 25 years to recognize the trouble with its horns. Researches are therefore already under way at the Institute of Optics and Acoustics of the University of Michigan, and elsewhere. A sound is being sought which will be audible enough to a car some distance away on a noisy highway but not too audible to a pedestrian virtually no distance away at all on an up-to-then quiet street. As Research Physicist Norman Barnett puts it, the sound must attract attention without jangling the 'nerves. Mr. Barnett and his colleagues are at work on the theory that pitch is more important than volume. They are open to conviction that "only minor alterations may be required," while prepared if need be to adopt "a radical overhaul in horn

Our own horn philosophy, which we have not had occasion to overhaul in the last 50 years, is that the less horn-blowing there is, the better we like it. This philosophical system seems to be borne out in a way by the accomplishments of the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories at Fort Monmouth, N.J. There, sound has been used successfully to cut quartz, slicing it three times thinner than it can be sliced by a conventional diamond saw. We trust that this compelling testimony to the destructive powers of the sound wave will spur the automobile industry horn, which we hope it will find while our specles is still all of one piece.

Town Without Water

The plight of Bethany, in northwest Missouri, whose water supply has been almost exhausted drouth, will touch the sympathies of every e. Bethany is in a 11-county area suffering severely from drouth. There, only an inch of water in the tub has been used for bathing, and afterwards it is bailed out to be sprinkled on parched flowers. Women are washing their h left over from boiling breakfast eggs. Despite its austerities, Bethany is less than away from complete exhaustion of its water supply.

Donnelly, declaring that neither this mmunity of nearly 3000 population, nor the state, can afford the cost of an emergency pipeline to the Grand river, 20 miles away, has appealed to the United States Army to step Whatever means are employed to meet this emergency, there is a long-range responsibility which rests upon Gov. Donnelly's administration itself, and which is still unmet.

That is the responsibility for adequate knowledge of the groundwater resources of Missouri. Bethany's problem is essentially one of inadequate groundwater. Our state should know much more than it does about the water reserves un-derlying its area. Only then can our communities all together manage those reserves for opti-

Facts About Humane Slaughter

The Mirror Public Opinion Society for Animal Protective Legislation appeals for laws for less cruel slaughter in meat packing plants; several major nations have adopted such regulations; says cost of better methods is slight; return in standards of humanitarianism is great.

From a Pamphlet of the Society for Animal Protective Legislation

Why should the United States enact compulsory humane slaughter legisla-

1. The infliction of unnecessary suf-fering on animals is abhortent to the majority of American citizens.

2. The United States is a world leader; its set standards of humaneness should not be inferior to those of the western European democracies, most of which already have such legislation.

3. More than $50,000,000 worth of meat is wasted annually in the United States through bruising. Humane slaughter is an important factor in bruise reduction.

What is the difference between hu-mane slaughter and the methods now used in most American packing plants? used in most American packing plants?
Routine slaughter of hogs: 1) The hogs are driven into a pen and shackled with a heavy chain around one hind leg. Hogs are carried aloft over a 14-foot wheel to the sticking area, where the animals then are left to bleed to death.

Routine slaughter of sheep, lambs and most calves: This is similar to hog slaughter.

Routine slaughter of cattle and some calves: 1) The animals are driven into stunning pens, usually 2-4 at a time.

2) A knocker (a man with a long-handled hammer) stands on a platform and tries to hit the animal's forehead in a manner to cause it to fall unconscious without doing too much damage to pate and brains.

Humane slaughter requires that animals be instantaneously stunned with one shot (as with the captive bolt pistol mais be instantaneously stunned with one shot (as with the captive bolt pistol or Remington stunning instrument) or that they be rapidly anesthetized (as with carbon dioxide) prior to shackling and bleeding. (Hogs fall asleep in 5-8 seconds in 65 per cent carbon dioxide. If not slaughtered, they awaken within three minutes and are willing to repeat the trip through the carbon dioxide tunnel, thus demonstrating the humaneness of this method.)

A captive bolt pistol costs $100. Ammunition costs 2½ cents per animal. The cost of the new Remington stunning instrument, going into production shortly, will be in the same general range. The American manufacturers of the carbon dioxide tunnnel have no set price. The cost of a Danish model which anesthetizes 240 pigs per hour is $4500 in Denmark. Cost of carbon dioxide per pig is less than 1 cent.

Those Bears Are Particular

From The Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser

From The Montgomer That bears are quick to catch on was indicated by a recent experience of a tourist in the Great Smoky mountains. After snapping several pictures of a "tame" park bear, the tourist, seated in his car, pulled out a candy bar. The rustling of the paper as it was removed from the bar attracted the bear, and the impatient animal reached into the car and clawed the tourist. Doctors took six stitches.

Great Smoky bears are so accustomed to handouts that they are resentful over any delay in delivering — this bear slashed the tourist with the angry impatience of some pressure group jabbing a Congressman who does not move fast enough to suit them.

Not so long ago the Great Smoky bears lived on mast, wild honey and such stuff, varied by an occasional mess of stolen pork. Now they are so accustomed to candy bars that before long they may be expected to lash out at anyone offering them a bar minus almonds, or lacking some other attribute they prefer. For bears, like people, can get mighty choosey all of a sudden.

Al Siepman, business agent for Local 1, said today a conference was being arranged with representatives of the Teamsters after teamsters complained of the pickets. The jobs once held by the electricians under contract with Sears-Roebuck, however, have been abolished under a new policy of letting the repair work to a private corporation.

The Evangelical Establishment of a new Protestant church was assured here yesterday. The Evangelical Lutheran Church gave its final approval to a merger with the American Lutheran Church and the United Evangelical Lutheran Church. The last barrier was removed when the E.L.C. agreed to accept membership in the World Council of Churches by a vote of 1434 to 685. Council membership had been a major point of contention. Both of the other merging bodies were members. In 1948, the E.L.C. overwhelmingly rejected membership in the World Council. Thursday in Cedar Falls, Ia, the United Evangelical body approved the merger by a vote of 395 to 19. The American Lutheran Church is expected to approve the union in the fall.

Roberts, gaining his seventh victory against eight defeats, avenged two earlier setbacks auffered against the Cardinals, yleiding only five hits, two by sensational Alvin Dark, who is batting a robust .514 since joining the Redbirds.

championships, continue tonight with one world record already broken and another tied. Jack Davis, former University of Southern California star now a Lieutenant (jg) in the Navy, smashed the world mark in the high hurdles with a time of 13.4 seconds in a preliminary heat. Then he was beaten in the final. Abilene Christian's fiashy sprinter, Bobby Morrow, tied the world mark of 10.2 seconds in the 100-meter dash, also in a preliminary heat. He went on to win the title with 10.3 in the final. California's Leamon King was second and Thane Baker of the Air Force third. The man who beat Davis in the final was Lee Calhoun of North Carolina College, in 13.6. Joel Shankle of Duke was third in 13.8. The record Davis runclipped a tenth second off the world standard set in 1950 by Dick Attlesey, also a former U.S.C. hurdler.

The action dragged out six hours last night with frequent confusion. It took about 30 minutes and a recheck to determine that Morrow had tied the record after his time at first was announced erroneously at 10.4. Officials went into another lengthy huddle after the high jump and the 9034 in Bakersifeld Memorial Stadium had to wait an hour for the announcement.

Finals in eight events were held with the remaining events to be decided tonight. Meet records which fell during the opening evening's busy program were:

Jackson led at only one stage against Hall, taking the third hole with a par-3 after the first two were halved in pars. Hall took the fourth, fifth and sixth with pars as Jackson bogeyed three straight times. The Missourian found the rough on both the fourth and fifth and 3-putted from 12 feet on the sixth.

Jackson took the seventh and ninth holes in par, but 3-putted to lose No. 8. He hit the turn one down after posting a 4-overpar 39.

P.G.A. officials cut 26 players from the 122 who finished the second day of play with a ruling that only those with cards=of 153 or under could continue. On Sunday, the field will be cut to 60 for the final day. There originally were 136 entrants is the tournament.

Behind Mayer, Fetchick and Holscher was Jay Herbert of Sanford, Fla., with a 136, and Gay Brewer Jr., Cincinnati: Al Besselink, Grossinger, N.Y.; Charles Sifford, Philadelphia: Art Wall Jr., Pocono Manor, Pa., and Doug Ford, Mahopac, N.Y., all with 137s.

Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., who took the lead the first day with a three under par 65, came up with a 73 yesterday for a 138 and a tle with Paul Harney of Bolton, Mass.

None of the pre-tournament favorites appeared to have more than an outside chance. Cary Middlecoff of Dallas, Tex., had a 143, while Jimmy Demaret, Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., and defending champion Ded Kroll, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., both had 142s. Three-putting again, this time from only seven feet, Jackson lost No. 10 to Hall's boggey-5 and fell two holes behind. He struggled back to win the short No. 11 with a birdie-2 after firing his tee shot to within seven feet of the cup, then lost two in a row as Hall applied the pressure three up and five to go.

On No. 12, a 331-yarder which Jackson reached with his tee shot the previous day, he drove into a creek bank and wound up with a double-boggey 6 after taking three hacks at the ball before getting out of the deep grass and trees.

The pair finally halved another hole on the 142-yard fifteenth as both hit the green from the tee and got down in two putts.

how his club-making father helped him get where he is.

The 22-year-old stocks and bonds salesman, married but still in the process of finishing his education in Washington U. night school, was the surprise finalist in the tournament which will end with a 36-hole title match tomorrow at Algonquin golf club.

Young Richter, who defeated veteran Harry Pailer, 2 and 1, in a semifinal contest yesterday, will play the 36-year-old iron play expert Jack Geiss, the 1950 district champion, who beat Joe Switzer, 3 and 2. Richter in the morning had upset defending champion Bob Goalby of St. Clair, 1 up.

Drilled Club Does Job.

The old lefthander, Ben Richter, pro at Bellerive who practices the ancient art of club-making, performed an operation on his son's putter that could have been the difference.

"Dad drilled a hole in the clubhead and removed some of its weight, and it's been working fine for me ever since," said Bob, a muscular five-foot-11, 178-pounder who has had rheumatic fever a couple of times in a haphazard athletic career.

Pailer saw the Richter putter at its best when Richter holed out eight-footers on the last two holes to close him out at its best when Richter notes out eight-footers on the last two holes to close him out more quickly than would have been possible otherwise. A 20-footer at No. 13 also had been of considerable value, not to mention a 15-footer at the third

Richter was three under par for the match in which the 41-year-old Pailer, a 20-year veteran of District tournaments, made a brilliant struggle year-old Pailer, a seven year-old Pailer, a seven of District tournaments, made a brilliant struggle against defeat.

That third hole developed an a musing sidelight. Richter marks his ball with a "lucky silver dollar." He had a tear in his pocket and lost the dollar after the second hole. After he made the long putt to win No. 3 and go one up, he discovered his loss and took time out for a moment to try to find it. It was found and returned to him and he had good use for that lucky piece later:

The son of the pro, getting gallery support because his wife is a Webster Groves girl with numerous friends at Algonquin. let Pailer square the match at No. 6, but went ahead again at the eighth where Pailer missed a short putt.

Pailer, however, made a great approach to two feet at No. 9 and after Richter flubbed his second shot, Pailer won the hole second shot, Pailer won the hole at the turn, both out

Two Even After 9 Holes.
Pailer, however, made a great approach to two feet at No. 9 and after Richter flubbed his second shot, Pailer won the hole to be even at the turn, both out in par 35.

But on No. 10 Pailer hit out of bounds and went one down. Then at the thirteenth Richter knocked in the 20-footer to go two up. Another fine approach at the fifteenth won for Pailer who holed a five-foot birdie put there. But at the sixteenth, Richter holed an eight-foot birdie put there, out to top of Pailer's three-footer for the same and the match ended when Pailer missed and Richter made from almost Richter holed an eight-foot birdie putt there. But at the sixteenth. Richter holed an eight-foot birdie putt on top of Paller's three-footer for the same and the match ended when Paller missed and Richter made from almost equal distance on No. 17.

Both Gelss and Switzer, who was runner-up a year ago, stumbled about in the first inie of their match in which Geiss was one up at the turn with a three-over-par 38.

Both players birdied No. 10, Switzer from a trap, and both switzer from a trap, and both bogied No. 11. From there on however, there was plenty of golf. Gelss was still one up when they halved No. 12 with short birdie putts. Geiss went two up with a four-footer for a birdie at the thirteenth and after they parred the next two up with a four-footer for a birdie putt at the sixteenth.

Music on a Summer Evening

Lights in the quadrangle at Washington University gleam on guest conductor Jascha Horenstein and members of the Little Symphony Orchestra as the series of summer concerts opened last night. Cellist Leslie Parnas was soloist in the first of the six Friday concerts to be presented in the twenty-second season of music under the stars.

OFF TO CAMP

Home and mother behind him, Peter Sullivan of Philadelphia steps out into a world in which dreams come true as he departs for summer carp with Pennsylvania's Seventy-ninth Infantry Reserve Division. The drum, not really too bulky for a 12-year-old, is indicative of his status as honorary drummer boy with the unit. He hit the military jackpot when he wrote the division commander he would like to serve the same as boys did in the Civil War.

ALL-NIGHT VIGIL IN CHURCH DISPUTE

Varying stages of fatigue, interest and boredom are reflected in faces of delegates attending all-night session of the general council meeting of Congregational Christian Churches at Omaha. Session started at 10 o'clock last night and ran until 7:30 this morning and was devoted to the reading of the minutes of the church's executive committee for a two-year period—90,000 words. Opponents of a proposed merger with the Evangelical and Reformed Church threatened a lawsuit if the records weren't disclosed in full.

CAIRO, June 23 (AP)—Egyptians voted today for a president and on ratification of the new constitution proposed by the military regime which has ruled the country since King Farouk was ousted four years ago. Women voted for the first time but feminist leader Doria Shafik said she would abstain because the new constitution does not allow women to hold office.

Premier Nasser was the only candidate for the presidency. The biggest change expected from this first balloting in seven years is that it will take the government out of uniform. Nasser and the other military officers of the ruling revolution command council are to resign their commissions and continue in power as civilans, deriving their power from law rather than the army.

The constitution specifies that cabinet ministers and other government officials must be civilians. Of Nasser's council of eight, the only one who will remain in the army is its commander-in-chief, Gen. Abdel Hakim Amer.

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are in-vited to submit their problems to Martha Carr.

NE day recently a friend informed me that I was supposed to have written a love note to a boy whom I care little about. Ever since then when we meet this I didn't write the note?

Now that school is out and you possibly won't see him often, you might as well forget the whole thing. Often to protest something like this too violently gives it far too much importance. If, however, this note was crude or in poor taste, you have every right to disclaim rethe boy again you might stop just to talk for a oment and see if you can bring up the subject grace fully. Probably by next fall it will have gone out of his mind altogether.

I HAVE ASKED A BOY to go with me to a backward dance and he has accepted. Should I call for him? Am I supposed to buy refreshments and should I take him

Unless a group of girls wish to go together and call for their dates as a part of the backward theme of the party, the boy usually goes to his date's home just as he would if he had invited her. Since the dance will not be over until late, I think he definitely should take her home whether he calls for her or not. He also would probably pick up the tab for the after-dance malt and hamburger unless the girls have planned refreshments at the party or at the home of one of the members. But if you're in doubt, ask the other girls what their plans are so you can conform.

IN ANSWER TO Missy B.: I am sure any one of the children's homes in this area would be delighted with a collection of paper dolls. Among those to whom you might send them are: Methodist Children's Home, 3715 Jamieson avenue; Annie Malone Children's Home, 2612 Goode avenue; Evangelical Children's Home, 8240 St. Charles Rock road; Stella Maris Day Care Center, 1025 Union boulevard; occupational therapy departments, City Hospital, 1515 Lafayette street, and Homer G. HE sensible thing today is, in many instances, the polite thing. Certainly this rule applies to elevator etiquette.

The other day I was ascending in a business building elevator when a man with me said, "Answer this for me: When several men are in front of her, facing the door, should they, when the elevator reaches the floor they want, step back and let her alight first or should they go out first and assist ther out?

I answered that they should go out first and assist her out. It is a sensible rule because it doesn't delay the elevator.

Secondly, it follows the rule, which I have mentioned often, that a man goes first when there is any possibility of danger. A man accompanying a lady leaves the elevator first, then turns and sees that she does not misstep when she

AN ELEVATOR COMPANY, after a survey on American manners, has the following suggestions for good elevator

Men keep their hats on. For a man to remove his hat in an elevator-at least in a business building-is awkward for him and takes up needed space.

"Ladies first" no longer applies when it means all manner of contortions for the men at the front of the car. It is easier—and more polite—for passengers to leave in the order in which they are standing in the car. Always face the front. It is safer, avoids confusion and speeds service because you can watch your floors more Shake your umbrella in the lobby before entering the car. A dripping umbrella is unpleasant for other passengers.

Don't take even the most lovable dog in a business the

If you must carry large packages, avoid the busy hours or use the freight elevator. Big parcels take up passenger space and may injure someone.

Don't smoke. Smoking in elevators is a fire hazard and a discomfort to other people. Even a palmed cigarette or cigar may burn a hole in someone's clothing.

Know where you are going. Consult the directory in the lobby for the number of the office you wish to visit. This eliminates inquiries after you have boarded the car.

Avoid these bad elevator manners: Blocking the doorway, spreading out a newspaper to read, elbowing in where there isn't room, holding up the car to chat with someone in the corridor, and littering the floor.

In self-service elevators, it is courteous to press the button for your floor, then turn to others, inquire what floors they are going to, and press the buttons for them. This avoids confusion and shows consideration for others.

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

be more fun and friendships—more dates, too—if shy girls and boys could solve the problem of the first "Hello." A 14-year-old girl asks:

Q.—"I am in the eighth grace and I know a boy who is in the tenth grade and is 15. I think this boy knows me and likes me, but never dares to speak to me. I always think that I will say 'Hi' to him or start a conversation, but I guess I never dare to. Is it too forward for a girl to speak to a boy first? Am I too young to go out with this boy?"

* * * ANSWER-When a girl and boy see each other frequently in school, church or in the neighborhood, it's OK for them to speak to each other, chat, and get acquainted without an introduction . . . although an introduction is fine if you know somebody who can introduce you.

It's correct manners for the girl to say "Hello" first.

The idea behind this is that it gives a girl the chance to decide whether she wants to encourage a boy's friendship or not . . . the choice is up to her.

So smile and speak to him the next time you two meet! You're old enough to go to parties, school or church doings with him. But until you're in high school, your parents will probably prefer to have you go and come home in their car (with one of them driving) or with one of the boy's parents. Many girls begin dating this way.

OT and humid are two little words, but they loom large these days on the front page of our local newspapers. "Keeping cool" is again a matter of major concern to St. Louisans. NEW YORK. WAS sent a book this week called "Hannah Fowler" by Janice Holt Giles. It is the second that has come to me about the settling of the wilderness, and particularly Kentucky.

major concern to St. Louisans.
There are three hot weather hazards to guard against—heat exhaustion, heat cramps and heat stroke. In most instances these hazards can be avoided.
Persons who spend long hours in the sun, work in foundries or around furnaces; older persons, or those with heart disease or high blood pressure, are most susceptible. This book presents a remarkable picture of the life of a woman in a ploneer community and makes you feel very close to her sorrows and joys. It brings out the realization that, basically, women are the same in today's modern world, but they certainly have an easier time in their physical surroundings.

Heat exhaustion, usually characterized by physical and mental prostration, dizziness, headaches, a moist, cold skin and weak, rapid pulse, is caused by circulatory failure due to excessive loss of salt, sugar and water which has not been replaced.

Heat cramps - painful spasmotic cramps of the muscles— are caused by the excessive loss of salt and water which is not or sait and water which is not replaced. They usually occur in persons doing heavy muscular work in high temperatures who are sweating profusely. This group, in particular, must take large amounts of sait—as much as eight 10-grain tables with at least 20 glasses of water each least 20 glasses of water each day.

Heat stroke, of which the outstanding feature is a tremendous rise in body temperature (107-110 degrees F.), is much more serious and usually occurs suddenly in persons working or playing in the hot sun. Prompt treatment may influence the outcome. If you experience any one of these conditions call your family physician at once.

I think books of this kind are good for us today. The heritage passed on to us by such women should never be forgotten and should give us courage to meet the difficulties which today may be just as hard from some points of view but in other ways certainly are physically easier to handle.

The book's love story has charm and points up certain basic truths. Hannah, for instance, says that "we care about those for whom we do," which is as true today as it was of women in the wilderness. SOME TIME AGO I told you about the first national Girl Scouts' senior roundup, but I want to mention it again. It is to take place in the Highland State Recreation Area near Milford, Mich., on June 29. Hannah did not know if she loved her man when she mar-ried him because she didn't know what love was, but she describes love very well a year later when she tells of her lone-

HAT did you do on this one?" asked Mr. Dale as he discussed this deal from the match between his team and a team of four from the Uptown club.

"I gave it a very fine play," said Mr. Champion modestly, "and made four hearts."

"and made four hearts."

The opening lead was the eight of spades and Mr. Champion won in his own hand with the ace. He saw there were not enough high card tricks for the contract and properly decided to set up a crossruff. He could afford to lose a trump trick as long as he was able to ruff all three of his losing diamonds on the board.

His decision to win the first trick in his own hand was good. If he had won it on the board and if Mr. South had opened a singleton, then a subsequent spade lead from "Mr. North would result in the ace being ruffed out.

Next he led a spade and won with the king. Then he crossruffed clubs and diamonds, losing a heart and a spade at the end, but making 10 tricks.

"I could have tried for five-odd by taking the heart finesse at trick three," Mr. Champion explained, "but that would have jeopardized my contract. "I didn't think East and West would reach the heart game against you and Muzzy." Mr. Champion continued. "I considered it a good aggressive contract and I wasn't worried about extra tricks—I just didn't want to take any chance of getting beat."

"Very commendable." remarked Mr. Dale. "They did reach the heart game — but didn't make it. Mr. East played it and he had the same general plan in mind that you had However, Muzzy's opening lead gave him a false sense of security."

Let's Explore Your Mind By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

mists agree it is a great blessing. But, hosts of people today are like Artemus Ward said, "Bound to live within their means if they have to borrow money to do it." They don't even realize they are living 6 per cent—and with some companies, 16 per cent—beyond their means. They lack the self-restraint to resist "bothing down, and months to pat." Installment buying is vitan to prosperity, but it is also a fine test of individual judgment and character.

ARE MEN more eager than women to "show off" their rbllity in cooking?

Yes, far more. I know one man who takes every possible occasion to boast of his ability to soft-boil an egg—something many chefs do not know how to do. Another man who can make a salad dressing gets up parties to show off this ability. Getting up parties with the guests doing the cooking will show you the men competing as though their lives depended on it, to prove their ability to make a sauce, broil a steak, or make a fancy dessert that no one else could match. Not one in a hundred could get up a meal as mother did—as a matter of course.

CAN YOU LEARN to remem-

Yes. No
Yes. Bruno Furst gives six rules for remembering names:
(1.) Get the name clearly. (2.) Repeat it immediately after introduction. (3.) See if the name has a meaning in itself. (4.) If it has no meaning, find a substitute. (5.) Repeat the name several, times. (6.) Write it down. If you don't get the name clearly and accurately, you cannot even speak of remembering or forgetting. You can neither remember nor forget something you never know.

The Senate passed a bill yesterday extending the Defense Production Act two years after refusing to eliminate from it a broad provision favoring geographical dispersal of industry. The dispersal provision provoked sharp debate, but twice by roll call votes the Senate decided to keep it in the bill. Senator Prescott Bush (Rep.), Connecticut, said the provision was "a dagger thrust at the heart of my own state and of from the East Coast to the West Coast, in this nation."

Senator William F. Knowland of California, the Republican floor leader, said the provision had in it the "makings of a corporate statein which all decisions of management would be

Auto executives said the increase in unemployment in the industry had ended. The leading companies looked forward to recalling men in large numbers when the new 1957 models go into production. Reports are that the new cars for 1957 will be lower, sleeker, restyled, and of the type that will lure buyers back into the market.

Snag in Steel Talks.

Offsetting the auto news was the snag in negotiations for a new steel contract. Market experts said the steel strike uncertainty was keeping many small traders out of the market. Meantime, some of the larger investors, including mutual funds and trusts bought more stock, notably in the automobile group. In the Monday market, industrials lost 2 points on average and sales volume fell off to 1,440,000 shares. On Tuesday the sales set a new low since Aug. 19, 1955, at 1,430,000 shares. In that session industrials and utilities firmed while rails eased. On Wednesday trading picked up somewhat with small gains in industrials and rails and a small loss in utilities. The latter were held down by weakness in natural gas issues. Next day the market showed more spirit. Sales volume increased substantially and all groups participated in a rise that lifted prices to new highs for a month. Friday's session saw prices firm most of the day but backing down in the final minutes under mild precautionary selling by traders hesitant to hold commitments over the weekend. Volume ran a bit below Thursday.

Sales for the week averaged 1,509,416 shares daily, smallest 1,559,416 shares daily, smallest since the week of Aug. 19 last year. The small volume was construed bullishly by most commentators who noted that it indicated lack of large commentators who noted that it indicated lack of large amounts of stock pressing for sale. It reflected trader caution on the market generally, the experts said. Aircrafts, several of which received large orders during the week, were strong and fairly active, featured by Boeing. Oil shares had their ups and downs. They were sold early in the week on cautionary statements supplies were being built up too rapidly, but the weekly statistics showed use of gasoline was higher than progasoline was higher than pro-duction of the fuel. Metals had periods of strength, notably the coppers. Some of the chemicals, notably Du Pont, were strong. Cement stocks with visions of huge orders on the road building program were in demand in several sessions.

Steel issues held well despite drab news from the negotiating groups seeking to draft a new wage contract before the strike deadline June 30. Railroad issues were soft at times but they perked up late in the week. Utilities also met better support after their average had been depressed. Wall street experts continued to talk about a summer rally which in the past often has started late in June or early in July. Many of them look for one this year.
